Gg

G, g /dʒiː/.
The seventh letter of the modern English alphabet and of the ancient Roman one, orig. corresp. to a differentiated form of C. In early Latin the letter represented the voiced velar plosive consonant /g/; subsequently before front vowels it was pronounced as a palatal or palato-alveolar affricate /dʒ/, its representation in the Romance languages being the same as the Latin consonant I, which developed into the same sound. G in mod. English has the following values. (i) G has the 'hard' sound /g/ before a, o, u, in a number of words before e, i, y, before a consonant, and when final. (ii) G has the 'soft' sound /dʒ/ before e, i, y. (iii) gh is silent in many words but in a few represents /f/. (iv) G is silent in gn at the beginning or end of a word and in some words medially.
